Photographs from Your DVD Film

Did you know one second of video contains 30 pictures? They're called frames to be exact - but the point is – you can make a photograph from virtually any scene in your film. This can be absolutely priceless if:

- * your professional photographer missed the exchange of the rings,
- * no one thought to take a picture of your grandmother dancing to “Stay’ in Alive”
- * your father got a beautiful picture of you crying on the altar, but your eyes were closed.

Although pictures from video are not quite as clear and crisp as traditional photos, they can be absolutely priceless if they're the only way to remember a distant relative, relive a special moment or capture a once-in-a-lifetime pose.

For each scene you want, Landmark will...

- capture it into a digital file of your choosing (jpeg, bmp, TIFF, PSD, etc.)
- eliminate the TV scanning lines (called “deinterlacing”)
- sharpen, color-correct and crop the image
- print out on glossy or matte paper
- include the photo on a CD
